Larry: Okay.

Dr. Mann: Um, I want again, you know, just the way it was, what transpired between you and Warren. Could you give me a statement to that regard?

Larry: Okay. Yeah, we didn't get off till late yesterday. Uh, I'll come by there this evening, if that's alright, and talk to you.

Dr. Mann: Okay. What time could you be by.

Dr. Mann: That's great. When did you meet this guy for the first time man? Let me just write a few things down. When was the first time you met him?

Larry: He wanted me to buy some guns from you, trying to get me to see if I could get a machine gun from you.

Dr. Mann: Did you, okay, huh. Did he offer you money for this or Larry: Yeah. Yeah, he offered me some money. He didn't give me an amount, but he did say he would pay me well.

Dr. Mann: And that's the Newman guy, Warren, is it Warren Newman we talked about.

Larry: Yes. Yeah. Warren Newman.

Dr. Mann: Was anybody with him or

Larry: Uh, yeah. I don't remember his name, but he did have somebody else with him, but he was with the DEA, the other guy was.

Dr. Mann: Huh, interesting. So anyway, when was the last time you talked to this guy?

Larry: It's been a while.

Dr. Mann: How long? How long?

Larry: I don't know. Probably 8 months I guess.

Dr. Mann: What was the last conversation Do you remember this last conversation you had with him?

Larry: Uh, he wanted to know if I had talked to you about getting those AK-47's.

Dr. Mann: Listen, what did he say about my cars man? What was the, which

Dr. Mann: Did the DEA guy say that or did Warren Newman.....

Dr. Mann: No, no. Who was the one who was going to be riding around in it?

Larry: Warren Newman. He's the ATF agent.

Dr. Mann: Okay....okay boss, yeah, if you could come by and if you could give me something to that effect, you know, I mean I appreciate it because I've got to compile something for these guys before, or on Monday I've got to turn this stuff over to them.

Larry: Okay. Yeah, I called you yesterday evening to let you know what I couldn't ... they wouldn't let me talk to you.

Dr. Mann: Okay, that's fine. I'll be free this evening.

Larry: Okay, well we'll see you this evening Dr. Mann.
